

14 Years Ago Today

From The Herald of This Date, 1900

THIRTEEN are being operated in Russia by soldiers. Many of the soldiers considered the locomotive as a new kind of toy. These being used by the soldiers are all old locomotives.

A Santa Fe passenger train struck an aged Mexican, thought to be Felix Delgado, and instantly killed him. The train was en route to the city of El Paso, and the victim was a resident of that city.

Word has been received here that the Santa Fe passenger train which was struck by the locomotive at the city of El Paso, has been repaired and is now running.

The El Paso public schools will close tomorrow for the Christmas holidays and reopen Tuesday, January 1. The Metropolitan, a new barber shop just opened at 121 N. Main, is not only the most modern and equipped shop in Texas, but is also the largest.

All trains from the west on the Southern Pacific are more than five hours late this afternoon, the result of a washout on the Los Angeles division.

Thursday, Dec. 21, is designated for the regular monthly field day at Fort Bliss.

Rabbi Martin Zaslowsky returned today from a visit to the city of El Paso. He is a resident of that city and has been absent for a month.

GRAND CENTRAL STATION.

The railroad station of the past has been much depreciated in value and value as the place where the human race reached the very apex of discomfort and boredom. This is still true of many a rural and small town depot, but not so of the metropolitan terminals. Some of them are perhaps the most complete monuments to modern convenience ever erected by the hand of man.

The Grand Central station in New York, for instance, where could one find a more interesting or convenient way to spend a week end? Indeed, it would be quite possible for those who are not in a hurry to spend a whole week in its underground passages, never emerging into the light of day. Every physical and artistic need has been provided for. There is an excellent and modern restaurant, a place to leave one's laundry. There is a barber shop and a beauty parlor. There are clothing stores, shoe shops.
